

MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 23, 1902.

As was stated Saturday the action of day virtually sealed the fate of the proposed memorial bridge for this session of Congress, and the promoters of the measure and all who had ardently both houses of Congress are again in the postion they were a year ago when just as their hopes were about to be realized the same House of Representatives by a close vote shattered the many dreams which had so long animated the projectors of the structure. While the measure was before the House Mr. Rixey fought valiantly for its adoption and controverted every argument urged against the building of the bridge, but a determined m jortty had taken a stand against the meas. ure, was impervious to logic, argument or sentiment, and repeated the act performed a year ago, the recommendation of the President, Secretary of War, Adjutant General, Grand Army of the Republic, the Business Men's League of Alexandria, county mass meetings and memorial bridge association to the contrary potwithstanding. The bill, it will be remembered, passed the Senate through the exertions of Messrs. Daniel and Martin, of Virginia. The action of the House astonished but few people who have watched current events lo these many years. When Alexandria was in the District of Columbia there was an unwritten law that no buildings or public improvements of any sort should come south of the Potomac-Many persons north of this river, especially real estate dealers and directors of large corporations, are seeing that the law is carried out now more fully than ever.

THE FOURTH OF JULY is drawing near again, and the pleasant conditions on that day one year ago, as well as on Christmas Day, six months later, are remembered by many for the reason that there was, on account of the action of Mayor Simpson, a marked diminution of the nerve-shattering noises which caused many people to dread the recurrence of these anniversaries. The Legislature passed an act forbiding the discharge in Virginia cities or towns of cannoncrackers and other devices which were gradually driving people frantic, and the Mayor saw that the law was observed. The Fourth of July can be appropriately observed without compelling quiet people to leave cities, and those who cannot allow the occasion to come around without bringing out old guns, small cannon, dynamite crackers and such things should go to the woods, or some other isolated spcts and erjoy themselves ad libitum. The people, is invariably seen in places where such practices are allowed, People walking along the streets should not be tortured by startling explosions or be placed in danger of being injured by practical jokers who take pleasure in making other people missrable or at least uncomfortable on public bolidays. The authorities of some cities have been compelled to curtail the practice of discharging explosives in the streets on any occasion, while others have in-terdicted it altogether.

It now seems evident that nothing will be done at this session of Congress to bring Cuba into close commercial relations with the United States, as urged by the President and his predecessor, Mr. McKinley, and supported nominally by the overwhelming majority of the republicans of both houses. The situation indicated by this statement of a fact that is patent to everybody is one bridge. of the strangest in the history of national legislation. It can be accounted for on no other theory than that the recently formed combination between the sugar trust and the beet sugar ring is too strong for the republican majority in Congress to resist. The hold that the trusts how have upon Congress is astonishing, and even the declarations of the various Sats conventions in favor of Cuban reciprocity seem to have no effect on the republican members. This state of affairs it is feared will go on from bad to worse and if at last the people rise and aweep the trusts from the face of the earth, those forming these combines would have only themselves to blame.

CUBAN RECIPEOCITY, either by legislation or treaty, seems to be impossible at this session of Congress. The President has been notified by the republican leaders of the Senate that nothing can be done in the Senate either with a a Cuban reciprocity bill or a treaty with Cuba at this session. They have canvassed the situation thoroughly and have found that the treaty which Mr. Roosevelt had had prepared as a last resort in the effort to obtain relief for Cuba cannot be ratified and it can be stated that the President has finally decided not to attempt to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with Cuba during the present session. Mr. Roosevelt has been beaten outright in the Cuban matter and the Cubans have been most wilfully deceived. If the Senate refuses to vote for reciprocity how can the same men be expected to vote for a treaty

THE PASSAGE of the irrigation bill was celebrated on Saturday night at the New Willard in Washington with his mother in-law, a dinner given by Senstor Dietrich, of Nebrasks, at which friends and advocates of the measure in Congress and outside of that body were the guests. About 75,000,000 scres of arid lands are to be reclaimed and made to blossom as the rose under the provisions of the bill. The job will cost from $5 to $10 per acre, which, according to the advocates of the measure, will be paid by the House of Representatives on that sattlers, not by the government. Since the land to be irrigated will beleng chiefie to land grant railroads, it is not easy at first eight to discern where the s tiler comes in as a reimbursing agent, hoped it would make its way through though why a dinner should be given to celebrate the passage of the bill is quite apparect.

> GOV. MONTAGUE, who spoke at the Tilden Club meeting in New York last week, has returned to Richmond and "I do not believe that Mr. Cleveland has any desire to be President. His speech did not impress me that way. But he is a great big man, and has a strong hold upon the people."

Well, if Mr. Cleveland has any desire to be President he might just as well abandon such desire at once. He may be a great big man and have a strong hold upon some people but a large majority of the democratic party, which he disrupted and embittered against him, would never vote for him again.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Correspondence of the Alexandria Gasette.

Washington, D. C., June 23. Admiral Dewey has been summoned to appear before the Senate committee on the Philippines on Thursday next. The committee decided a long time ago to secure his test mony as to the exact situation at Mapila during the early days of American occupation an especially as to the promises made and relations established by him with Aguinaldo and the Filipinos. He will be asked to tell about all of the correspondence he had with Aguinaldo and the Philippine junta while he was at Hong Kong before sailing to the capture of Manils, and the understanding existing when he caused Aguinaldo to be brought to Manils.

Senator Allison, chairman of the Senate committie on appropriations, and Representative Cannon, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, this morning discussed the condition of business in the two houses and both said that in their opinion t will not be possible to get through with everything so as to enable Congress to adjourn before July 5th. They think a session on Independence Day, July 4th, will be inevitable, If both Houses decide to take a holiday on that day it is likely that final adjourn-ment will be postponed until the following week.

President Roosevelt will probably leave here the night that Congress ad-journe, and is likely to be in Washington very little from that time until October I, since the White House will be practically uninhabitable on account of the work of alteration, which is to appointed to investigate the charges of corruption made by Captain Christmas in connection with the proposed calculation of the miners. last all summer.

The special committee of the House result of the indiscriminate use of firearms, especially by young and careless States will wind up the case in a report before Congress adjourns. The committee have secured most of the data in the case which is in substance as published in the newspapers at the time the charges were made. Senator Daniel and Mr. Rixey both think that the action of the House on Saturday settled the fate of the Memorial Bridge for this session. They did all they could to secure the passage of the bill but the fates and the appropri ations committee were against them. It is also said about the Capital that the Pennsylvania Railroad, which com-pletely controls Congress, had much to do with killing the bill, as that company does not want any more bridges across the Potomac than there are at The company, it is also said, wants to change the location of the roadway bridge which it has agreed to construct in connection with the Long Bridge, and build it as far west as the foot of Severt septh street, also that the company wants Congress to extend the time two years longer than was origin nally agreed upon for building the bridge.

The conferees of the House and Senate on the Isthmian Canal bill will have their first meeting this afternoon. While it is uncertain how long they will be in session before sain how long they will be in session before reaching a conclusion, there is a reasonable probability that they may reach an agreement to accept the senste bill for the Panama rente. The indications are that two-thirds of the membership of the House are ready to vote for the acceptance of the Senste bill. The democrats want a chance to vote orce for the Nicarsgua route in accordance with their platform declaration. But they fear that if they do vote this way and against a motion to adopt the Senste bills, the republicans will vote soildly for it and carry it, thus leaving the democrats in the attitude of licans will vote solidly for it and carry it, thus leaving the democrats in the attitude of opposing a canal bill for which they have been writing and specking for thirty years. By presentative Tawney of Minnesota, the unbiten whip of the House, believes that Cuban reciprocity is dead for all time "When Congress meets again next winter" said Mr. Tawney, "the President will find that he has a stronger opposition than he has right now. The only time that the scheme ever bad a chance was last December or Junuary when the Thurber propaganda was first stirring up sympathy. Just as zoon as the investigation was started, however, and it attring up sympathy. Just as soon as the investigation was started, however, and it was discovered that the stories of Cuban distress were mostly lies out of whole cloth, sentiment started the other way and has been growing stronger sgainst yielding to their demands ever since. The President will be wise to drop the idea altogether."

Benator Martin was not is his seat this morning but is expected back from Virginia this evening. Senator Daniel is here but will go to Bichmond in time to attend the reassembling on Wednes'ay of the constitutional convention. He thinks the convention will be in in session about two days.

An adverse vote was taken in t'e Cannon brought up the conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill, Gen. Grosvenor, of Onio, moved to accept the Senate amendment, giving $100.000 toward the project. This was debated for about a half hour before a viva voce vct. was taken. There was no division. It is generally believed the Senate will recede, sud that any appropriation for the memorial bridge is impossible at this session of Congress.

propriation for the memorial bridge is impossible at this session of Congress, Gen. Groevenor said he had made the motion in behalf of the Grand Army of the Republic. He yielded to Mr. Rixey who explained that the matter had been before Congress for fifteen years. He reviewed briefly the efforts to secure legislation. It had been adopted time and again by the Senate and retime and again by the Senate and recommended in strong terms by all secretaries of war, beginning with Mr.

Mr. Steele, of Indiana, suggested that Virginia should pay a part of the cost. Virginia should pay a part of the cost.

"That has been suggested before," rejoined Mr. R xey, "but the counter-suggestion was made before the House committee on interstate commerce that if Virginia paid part of the cost that State should have some say about the limit of cost, and about the management of the structure. The members of the committee plainly indicated they would never concent to that."

would never consent to thet."

Mr. Rixey told how an appropriation for building the bridge had passed the House two years ago on a rising vote, but was defeated on a roll-call—116 to 130. Mr. Cannon had then appealed to the House to wait six months more. Mr. Rixey explained that the new highway bridge and the Aqueduct Bridge accommodated a congested travel. The memorial bridge would accommodate a large amount of travel in a different direction. It would directly connect the city of Washington with the great oemetery at Arlington, Mr. McRae said the bridge should be authorized on a separate bill, and only after careful consideration.

Mr. Mann attacked the proposition vigorously. He asserted that it was in the interest of a real estate scheme. It was to be a "fancy bridge," with a roadway down to Mount Vernon, so that the property all along the road would be benefited. "The gentleman is always discover ing a real estate speculation in legisla, tion," asserted Gen. Grosvenor, "but he voted the other day for that great real estate speculation in the irrigation

Mr. Robinson had insisted that the bridge was for the benefit of the city of Washington, and the city of Washington had too much already. Judge Warnock said the fact that Washington was to benefit from the bridge was no argument against building it. The bridge would be a monument to the great soldiers of the republic in whom the north and south were interested,

Gen. Hooker, advocated the construction of the bridge. He told of the memorial bridges over the Thames in London, the London Bridge, the Victoria Bridge, and the Albert Bridge. "Sentiment is sometimes seized upon," said Mr. Cannon, "to promote appropriations that ought and ought not to be made. I came to Washington in Grant's made. I canie to Washington in Graft's second term. The papers then were full of memorial bridge, and they are full of it now, It is a sort of a round robin for this project. I don't blame the people for this. If I lived here, I should be for this memorial bridge." Mr. Cannon reverted to the new bridge now in contemplation and the new pier for the Aqueduct bridge being authorized on the pending District bill. He said the new highway bridge was authorized a year ago, and now the cost was to be increased to almost a million. "I be-lieve that bridge ought to be moved up to Seventeenth street and built to Ar-lington," argued Mr. Cannon. "I shall urge that in conference."

Mr. Rixey interposed that that would things the people of the District of

SHOOTING AFFRAY. Lewis F. Hansbrough shot and probably fatally wounded Spencer Jackson in Warretton Saturday. No cause can be assigned beyond that they were both drinking, Hansbrough being the more intoxicated of the two. The shooting occurred in front of Carter's drug store on Cuipeper street. Messrs. H. C. Fisher and Kemp Rush were the two chief witnesses to the shooting. They came upon the scene while Hansbrough and Jackson were quarreling. It seems that Jackson accused Hansbrough of playing poker with young boys, and to this charge Hansbrough gave the lie and followed it up by drawing his revolver and cursing Jack-son at the same time, Seeing that trouble was imminent, Fisher and Rush took hold of Hansbrough and tried to quiet him. He resisted inter-ference and fired during the scoffle. The first two shots went wild, one im-bedding itself in the sill of the door and the other one entering the cellar lodging in the head of a barrel. The third shot struck Jackson, entering on the right side of the lower part of the stomach and taking an upward course, penetrating the atomach, disphragm, and lungs, and coming out under the right shoulder blade. The bullet was DRY GOODS.

found yesterday morning on the pavement where the shooting took place.
Hansbrough was lodged in jail immediately after the shorting. Jackson was taken to the home of his brother-inlaw, C. M. Pattie, where a hasty ex-sminstion of his wound was made. Dr. James Kerr, of Washington, who has a summer residence in Warrenton, was called in and after a consultation with Drs. Maphls, Carter, and Douglas, an operation was deemed necessary. The operation was successful in tracing the ourse of the bullet. Jackson's condition is regarded as very sericus and little hope is entertained of his recov-ery. Hausbrough is a well-known re-publican politician and is deputy col-lector of internal revenue. There had delivering an impressive oration. A been no past bed feeling between the two. In fact, they had been friends. Hansbrough is completely broken down, and can assign no reason whatever for the chooting. Hansbrough is well known in this city, he having once been clerk in the revenue office

> RANCHMAN BETWEEN TWO FIRES -Mrs. Aimee C. Mercer, of Jamaica, L. I., has a verdict of $50,000 for breach of promise to collect if ever Ranchman Carletian Balduf, of Arroyo county, Tex., comes to town. She was granted

Tex., comes to town. She was granted the amount by a sheriff's jury after it had spent a pleasant two hours reading. Mr. Balduf's sultry correspondence.

Balduf is a typical millionaire plaineman. He came often to New York, carried a valet, lived at the Broadway hotels and made life pleasant the state of the pleasant was a sultry of the Broadway hotels and made life pleasant made life pleasant made life pleasant was a sultry of the Broadway hotels and made life pleasant for all he came in contact with. One of these was Mrs. Mercer, who admits she is 38, but is blond and prepomeesing. She had been in the millinery business in New York but gave it up when she became engaged to Balduf. He was willing and anxious to marry her, but down in Arroyo he had a b-libreed for a housekeep vr. This women with the mixture of Mexican and Indean blood, had been reared in a convent, and she could read Balduf's lotters. He was postmaster of Arroyo, and she ran the offile, greatly to his annoyance.

The first letter received from Mrs. Mercer after the engagement caused the Arroyo we-man to break up all the furniture in Balduf's house. Thereafter all mail between New York and Arroyo was intercepted. Balduf came East to sattle with Mrs. Mercer, but her lawyers vould rot let him. They got savvee on him in a suit but he made no defense, and now all Mrs Mercer has is a judgment.
